

CSCI 3330 Assignment 0

Deadline: September 9, 2025, 10:00pm

1 Learning outcomes

- To join our class's Slack workspace.
- To communicate to me any questions, concerns, or requests.
- To understand the course's Syllabus.

2 Background

In this assignment, you will be setting up Slack and providing some basic proof of life using your Slack account. You will be receiving an invitation to the class's Slack group by end-of-day September 4 at your Bowdoin email address. If it is September 5 or later and you have not received this invitation, please contact me as soon as possible.

Our Slack workspace contains a single channel visible to everyone: #general. To post anonymously in the general channel, just type your message like so:

`/anonymous This is an anonymous message`

(but note that you cannot reply anonymously inside a message thread). Messages can also be edited or deleted after posting.

To send a direct message to me, select my name under "Direct messages".

3 Tasks

- Accept the Slack invitation you have received and join our Slack channel.
- Install the Slack desktop app onto your computer.
- Read the course's syllabus.

4 Submission

After reading the Syllabus, send me a direct message on Slack containing any content, including any questions or concerns you have about this class, anything that would be helpful for me to know to better support your learning and comfort, or just a simple “hello”.
